

Tara Gallagher

Product Director, Solution Strategy and Innovations, Sg2

Tara has been a product leader at Sg2 since 2017 and has been responsible for many of Sg2's legacy tools. She has spent the past couple of years focused on the development of Sg2's next claims solution, Provider Connections, which is designed for business development and physician outreach teams to activate near-term growth. Tara has over 20 years of health care experience that includes product development, consulting and product management.

Tara previously worked for Hammes Company as a consulting manager in the advisory services group. In that role, Tara managed analytics, research and project support in advisory services, including internal and external data collection, market intelligence, leadership interviews, provider models, and deliverables. Formerly, she was a product manager at Sachs Group and provided day-to-day management of a multidisciplinary team that included developers, data sciences, quality assurance and associate product managers to develop the product road map and strategy.

Tara has a bachelor of science in international economics from Eastern Illinois University and lives in Glenview, IL with her husband, Mike, and four teenage daughters. She enjoys watching her daughters' sports events whenever possible and going on long road trips to the beaches of South Carolina.